

LAWYERS IN HYDE CASE CLASHED

Atty. Walsh for the Defense Said Jury Notes Lost Through Blundering.

PROSECUTION SAID "STOLEN"

First Jury Had Heard of Matter—Dr. Haines Testified Concerning Cyanide of Potassium.

Kansas City, May 2.—As a result of a hot clash between Prosecutor Conkling and Atty. Frank P. Walsh, the jury that is hearing the Hyde murder trial today came into possession of a part of the story of the disappearance of the grand jury notes in the case. When the first trouble arose between the attorneys two weeks ago, the jury was not in the room.

Shortly prior to the noon recess, in the course of a legal argument, Mr. Conkling made reference to the "stolen grand jury notes."

"Springing a table with his hat and shouting: 'Who stole the notes? They were lost through the blundering of the prosecutor's office.'"

"They were stolen," responded Mr. Conkling, angrily.

"I ask the court to reprimand the prosecutor for that remark," said Mr. Walsh, turning to Mr. Conkling.

"The court has no comment to make," said the judge.

"Who stole the notes?" queried Mr. Conkling.

"The jurors, who had followed tedious medical testimony all morning, sat up in their chairs."

"I can say but I know who retained them and refused to give them up until the court threatened to send the client to jail," answered the prosecutor.

Dr. Haines began an explanation of his conduct, and the court stopped the verbal bout.

DR. HAINES' TESTIMONY.

Dr. Walter S. Haines resumed testifying in the Hyde murder trial today. He took the stand before the court and jury at 10 o'clock and had given a greater part of his direct testimony. It was believed, when the session closed.

In his testimony yesterday Dr. Haines told of finding traces of strychnine in the brain and stomach of Col. Thomas H. Swope and the liver and stomach of Col. Swope and the liver and stomach of Col. Swope. There was no large amount in either case, he testified. Cyanide was found by him and Dr. Victor C. Vaughn in the stomach of Col. Swope and in the stomach of Col. Swope. Dr. Haines is alleged to have discarded in a street in Independence, Mo.

The motion made by the defense yesterday to strike out the testimony of Dr. Haines on the ground that it was speculative and irrelevant was overruled by Judge Lathrop at the opening of court today. The court did not read the motion. Dr. Haines had read all the scientist's testimony.

Envelopes which contained the capsules and the cards upon which they were fastened were offered in evidence. Dr. Haines said the capsules were made by cyanide and melted snow, testified the witness. There was no possibility of the poison found having come from any other source, said the witness.

ODOR OF CYANIDE.

"What is the odor of cyanide?" asked Mr. Reed.

"That of bitter almonds," replied the witness.

This odor could not be readily ascertained on the hands after cyanide had been handled, testified the physician. Describing the nature of cyanide Dr. Haines said:

"The poison may disappear from a body in a few days or may remain for several months. It is a volatile poison."

Embalmers' fluid would harden the tissues and tend to prevent the escape of the poison, said the toxicologist.

Volatilization of the cyanide would be prevented, in his opinion, if a body was frozen, said the witness.

"What are fatal doses of strychnine?" queried Mr. Reed.

"A third to half grain of strychnine in water from three to five grains of cyanide," answered Dr. Haines.

Attorney Walsh took the witness.

"What do you mean by a trace of strychnine?" asked Mr. Walsh.

"An amount so small that it cannot be weighed," replied the witness.

Further questioning developed that strychnine in amounts of 1-64th of a grain could be weighed.

The frequently discussed discussion of the admissibility of the testimony regarding the attempts of Dr. Hyde's assistants to obtain the viscera from Dr. Swope was argued again today. This question occupied the greater part of the morning. The testimony was not admitted.

When, on March 3, the first decision was made for the organs Dr. Haines admitted that no poisons in dangerous quantities had been found by him. Dr. Walsh therefore held that it was only fair at that time to have permitted Dr. E. E. Smith, one of Dr. Hyde's assistants, known to Dr. Haines, to have taken part of the viscera. The state intended the proper course would have been to have applied to the court to have a commission of medical experts to make an examination of the organs.

OBSCENE LANGUAGE IN ENGLAND CONSISTS IN SAYING "DAMMIT"

London, May 3.—A police magistrate at Ivy Bridge, in Devonshire, has decided that the word "dammit" is obscene, and that its use may be punished as a crime.

The Hon. Francis Lancelotti, son of the Earl of Harrwood, was bicycling through the country when he ran into and capsized by a carriage driven by a woman. In the accident the Hon. Francis lost one ear and his collar bone was broken.

Under this slight provocation he said "Dammit," and the woman had him arrested and arraigned for using obscene language. The magistrate fined him $5 and costs.

SAMPLES OF ROCK CLAIMED FOREIGN

Witness Zalkinski Called to Make Foundation for Evidence Shows Stope Was Guttered and Then Filled.

After samples of rock had been produced this morning at the hearing of the Silver King Consolidated Mining company against the Silver King Consolidated Mining company, Atty. E. B. Critchlow, counsel for the Consolidated, declared in answer to Judge W. H. Dickson, chief counsel for the defense, that evidence would be submitted to show that the Parson's stope had been guttered and then filled by material taken from other parts of the mine.

In continuing the cross-examination following Mr. Critchlow's statement, A. C. Ellis, Jr., asked, "Did you carry that sample into the stope, Mr. Zalkinski?"

"No sir, I did not," was the reply.

Taking the sample Mr. Ellis had the witness compare it with other samples taken from the roof and foot wall and describe in detail the difference.

The foreign sample was a fine grained limestone, almost yellow in color and softer than the normal solidified limestone found in the roof of the stope. Zalkinski was unable to say just how much of this material was in the stope among the filling, but he declared that there was considerable. During the entire session Zalkinski was on the stand and testified in regard to the samples he had taken and located them all on the map exhibits.

Des Moines, N. D., May 3.—One hundred acres plowed and sown in a single day represents the generosity of neighbors of E. W. Straley, a farmer residing five miles from Des Moines, who has been sick all winter and spring.

With 23 outfits on the field at once and with the wives and daughters of a number of the neighbors engaged in the work, yesterday's sight was a unique one.

Bringing gang-plows, harrows, drills, and one even coming with a steam-plow, the neighbors did the work in a rapid manner. At noon the dinner was served by the women on the lawn. Mr. Straley was able to be out for the first time in many months.

PROHIBITION IN ALABAMA

Montgomery, Ala., May 3.—Returns today indicated that the predicted gubernatorial majority of O'Neal, the local politician, over Mallory, state-wide prohibitionist, of 26,000 in the state Democratic primary yesterday, is high and that it may be reduced to 10,000.

However, there is every prospect that O'Neal is safely nominated.

Senator Bankhead has more than both the other candidates combined for the United States senate.

At the weekly meeting of the Methodist Preachers' association a resolution was adopted which says:

"Resolved, That the permission of this fight can be regarded as nothing less than a national disgrace and a calamity to the moral life of our people; that the Philadelphia Preachers protest against the permission of this fight and invite the ministers of all denominations in the state of Pennsylvania and in other states to stir their people and to unite with us in a protest to the governor of California against the permission to conduct this fight."

ONLY TWO MORE DAYS TO FINISH CENSUS

Commercial Club Doing Good Work In Trying to Get Everybody in The Official Count.

Although there are only two more days left in which to complete the census count, numerous complaints reached the Commercial club this morning of houses which had been overlooked. It is reported that 13 houses had been overlooked. The other complaints were scattered about the city. The list was immediately referred to Hugh A. McMillin, the census director, who has taken the matter up and will have each complaint investigated.

The Commercial club has accomplished considerable work in the campaign for a full count, and has given valuable assistance to the enumerators. There are some people in Salt Lake who have made it particularly hard for the census takers and evidently do not want to be counted. The Commercial club is desirous for a full count, however, because it will give Salt Lake considerable prestige to be able to show in full its growth in the last 10 years.

If the following named persons will forward their correct residence address to the census supervisor they will be properly enumerated on the general population schedules. The bureau has received an individual census slip in each case, but no address was given: Mrs. Thomas William Archer, Mr. Thomas William Archer, Grace A. Brown, Ella L. Bucher, Charles Frederick Hancock, Willis Ewert Inney, William D. Hyde, Thomas Redmond, Edith M. Bryant, Bertha L. Merriam, Goldie Elwood Bell, Augustus C. Phillips, Oliver M. Dorian, Julius S. Allred.

BOY KIDNAPED HIMSELF AND TERRORIZED PARENTS

New York, May 3.—Harry Spindle, a bristly little boy of 12 years, is being held by the Children's society here on his own confession that he kidnapped himself, terrorized his parents with Black Hand letters and then when he failed to procure the money he needed to go west, invented a get-rich-quick scheme that netted him $100 in less than a week.

A string of sad little girls, his victims, and his angry mother, his little sister, corroborated his story. Harry's plan, as told by himself, was to find some little girl on the street, snatcher her with news of how her father had just been elected president of a lodge and then get the mother to borrow $25, $4 or $5 from the corner grocery to buy flowers for a surprise to father when he came home. Then Harry would offer to run to the father's with the money, but he never came back.

With his pal, Arthur Golden, 12 years old, Harry left home more than a week ago, fired with an ambition to go west after having seen a thrilling moving picture show.

CAN MILK CAUSE TUBERCULOSIS?

Dr. W. H. Park Holds That Among Adults Does Not Result From Impure Milk or Foods.

HE SUPPORTS KOCH'S THEORY

Dr. S. Adolphus Knopf Opposed to Too Much Paternalism on Part of the State.

Washington, May 3.—Whether tuberculosis is caused by milk or meat infected from bovine sources and what may be the best employment for tuberculosis were the chief subjects discussed today at the session of the national association for the study and prevention of the disease.

Discussion on the former topic was started by Dr. William H. Park of New York and on the latter by Dr. A. M. Foster of Louisville, Ky. Dr. Park held that pulmonary tuberculosis among adults was not the result of impure milk or foods.

Dr. S. Adolphus Knopf of New York attacked the theory that this disease is caused by the consumption of milk or meat from infected sources. He said that this disease is caused by the consumption of milk or meat from infected sources. He said that this disease is caused by the consumption of milk or meat from infected sources.

DR. PARK AGREES WITH KOCH

Only 2% per cent of all tuberculosis in New York City comes from infected milk, butter or meat from bovine sources, according to the statement made by Dr. William H. Park of that city today before the Pathological section of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, at its sixth annual meeting.

Dr. Park, who is president of the association, said that this small percentage is found mainly in children. In other words pulmonary tuberculosis among adults is contracted solely from human beings, and is not the result of impure milk or foods.

Dr. Park supported throughout his paper the contention advanced by Dr. Robert Koch of Berlin, the discoverer of the tubercle germ, when he stated practically all in declaring that cattle did not transmit pulmonary tuberculosis to human beings.

The significance of these conclusions, however, will be to direct all the energy of the campaign against tuberculosis to eliminating the spread of this disease among human beings, by preventing spitting, bad housing, and other conditions bad for the health.

Dr. Park's paper was followed by wide discussion. Dr. Marshall Fabry, of Boston, presented the story of two cases of human tuberculosis in which the bovine type of bacillus was associated.

GOOD COMMON SENSE

Dr. S. Adolphus Knopf of New York does not believe in the exhibition of too much paternalism on the part of the state to the indigent consumptive, particularly in the treatment of tuberculosis. He said that the state should not be too paternalistic in its treatment of the indigent consumptive.

New York, May 3.—His Imperial Highness Prince Tsai Tao, head of the general staff of the Chinese army, and himself just 24 years old, who is visiting America in a quest of information for the rebuilding of China's army, has learned to like American cooking.

"Ah, your food; it is better than ours," he said to one of his New York hostesses.

The prince regards his visit to West Point yesterday as the most important event of his American trip, according to a report that he planned to discuss matters of financial business with the two millionaires. It was said that the prince is authorized to purchase several million dollars worth of military equipment and that a share of this money is to come to America. CUTTING SCRAPE AND A ROBBERY

Row Among Ice Cream Peddlers Creates Considerable Excitement on State St.

CHINAMAN LOSES HIS CASH

His Wails Bring Police With Drawn Revolvers and a Big Crowd Behind on the Run.

Because Jim John accidentally upset his ice cream cart at the rear of Keeley's store, 260 State street, at 10:30 this morning, Tom Peters whipped out a keen bladed knife and slashed John across the throat, inflicting an ugly wound in the left side of the neck and nearly ending the life of his victim.

Both men are foreigners and have been employed as push cart ice cream peddlers. They were in an alleyway at the rear of the store when the trouble occurred. Several foreigners working on the street saw the murderous assault and some one notified the police.

Peters struck but once with the knife but the blade sank deeply into John's neck, narrowly missing the jugular vein. The wounded man staggered to the street where he sank to the ground, exhausted from loss of blood. Peters ran through the Empire noodle house conducted by Young Woo, got out the back way over a fence and ran to Main street, where he was captured by Patrolman Len Young. The fellow threw away his knife and it could not be found.

John was taken to the office of Dr. J. H. Robinson, where his wound was dressed, and later he was sent to his home in Greentown.

The patrol wagon with Driver Moore, Patrolman Gillespie and a News reporter hauled to the scene and were joined by Patrolman George Phillips. The neighborhood was thoroughly searched for the murderous assailant, but he could not be found.

CHINAMAN ROBBED

As the officers and newspaper man entered the Chinese restaurant, Young Woo, the proprietor, informed them that the man had run through the rear of the place. Woo led the way and while the search was being prosecuted, a thief slipped into the restaurant, jumped over the counter and cleaned out the cash register, securing about $25. The thief missed about $250 which was in a small box near the register.

Probably fully 2,000 persons were attracted to the scene by the commotion, and the crowd was considerably augmented when the Chinaman uttered a cry and ran to the rear of the place. The man who had been captured and was standing right and left. With drawn revolvers Gillespie and Phillips rushed back to the front of the place. The thief was seen to run away.

The patrol wagon had scarcely returned to the station when a car came from Main between Second and Third South from Patrolman Young that he had captured Peters. The latter gave the desk sergeant the name of the man he had arrested as his own, but it was learned at Keeley's that the prisoner went by the name of Peters, and that his victim was called Jim John. The injured man's name was "Peters."

Charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to commit murder.

"RETURN FROM ELBA" SCHEDULED FOR ANNIVERSARY OF WATERLOO

New York, May 3.—An anonymous communication addressed to the Roosevelt reception committee calls attention to a fact which had hitherto escaped notice, that the date on which Col. Roosevelt is scheduled to arrive in New York is the anniversary of the battle of Waterloo.

"This discovery will probably cause untold consternation, among the members of 'Back From Elba Club,'" says the committee's report.

CURFEW ORDINANCE WILL BE OBSERVED

Judge McMaster Accepts Municipal Regulations in Preference to The State Statutes.

In the enforcement of the curfew ordinance the juvenile court authorities will be guided by the laws of the city rather than those of the state, ignoring the conflicts of the provisions.

The state statutes, in the curfew law, fixes 11 years as the age limit of children permitted to be on the streets unaccompanied by a guardian after 9 o'clock at night, while the city sets the age limit at 18 years. Judge McMaster and other officials of the juvenile court accept the city ordinance because of its greater efficacy in the handling of the problem of the growing boy and girl. From his experience in dealing with children coming into the juvenile court Judge McMaster is of the opinion that the most dangerous age for the youth inclined to waywardness is between 14 and 18 years.

In legal opinion it is held that the city has the right to make such regulations for the protection and safety of the public and the betterment of the public morals as it may deem necessary, and the fact that the city increased the age limit in the curfew ordinance over that fixed by the state is held to be no direct conflict with the state statutes.

The juvenile court is still maintaining its street patrol in the enforcement of the curfew ordinance and the youthful offenders will be gathered in for admonishment from time to time.

FIREMEN HELP COMRADE

Eddie Andrews Called to Headquarters and Given a Lecture and Check.

Eddie Andrews, driver on No. 2 hose wagon of the Salt Lake fire department, has had more than his share of troubles and has had at least as much hard luck as any other member of the department, but this morning he was made to feel that life is worth living after all, and that good friends and true are better than a whole lot of things in this sometimes hard old world.

For many months Andrews has had a great deal of sickness in his family and the doctor bills began to pile up like a mountain high. But Eddie Andrews was "game" and "struggled" along as best he could on the stipend of $85 per month, paying the doctor as much as he could each pay day out of his salary.

This morning Andrews thought his troubles had about reached the limit, when he received a command from Chief W. H. Glor to report at headquarters.

Andrews walked into the presence of the chief, the latter looked severe enough to eat his subordinate. Fixing a stern gaze upon the unhappy fire fighter, Chief Glor said:

"Well, I am sorry to have to call you 'on the carpet,' but circumstances demand it. It has come to me that the men are all talking about you. They are saying things which seem hard to explain. Can you offer any explanation?"

"Why, I don't know what you mean," replied Andrews, casting an appealing look at the chief. "Chief Fitzgerald. The latter scowled and turned his back. Andrews nearly fainted because he and Fitzgerald have always been good friends.

"It is a fact," continued Chief Glor, "that you have been going around the city at different stations."

"Well, it looks like it," said Chief Glor, "and here is the proof." Then Chief Glor handed to Andrews a list of names and with a check for $22.50 explained to the "boys" just "to help Eddie along a little."

By this time, great beads of perspiration were standing out on the face of the puzzled fire fighter. His surprise was not complete until he saw a receipt bill for $275, signed by Dr. C. M. Benedict, which read: "Paid in full to May 2, 1910."

Chief Glor, Asst. Chief Fitzgerald and Capt. Billy Cahoon started the thing about a week ago. They went around and "checked" the boys and the latter gladly subscribed what they could to help a brother fireman out of trouble. The fact that there are several firemen in the city who are "game" was enough for them and they were happy to do what they could. Then some of the boys went to see Dr. Benedict to find out what the check was for. When Dr. Benedict learned that the firemen were doing, and the circumstances surrounding the case, he quietly reached for a receipt blank pen and ink, and making out a receipt in full, handed the same to the firemen with the remark: "Just tack that onto your list."

POLL TAXES DELINQUENT

LAST LETTER OF A MAN WHO COMMITTED SUICIDE

Chicago, May 3.—J. Henry Ball, a carpenter 32 years old, committed suicide yesterday by drinking carbolic acid. He left a letter addressed to a fellow carpenter which reads:

"When a man is down and out, in a land of plenty and cannot even get a meal, it is time to quit. I went last night to the Moody church and after the service I asked one of the ministers for aid. He opened his pocketbook and he hid his heart and gave me 25 cents. I bought the acid with that quarter. If you ever see him, thank him for me. I ought to write to him to thank him but I haven't time."

LIVE WIRE KIDS PAINTER'S LIFE

A. E. Vaughn Electrocuted While Working on a Pole on State Street.

SONG CUT SHORT BY DEATH

Men Stand Helpless While Body Hangs Across Wire Then Plunges Twenty Feet to Ground.

While men working in a trench looked on, powerless to render any assistance, A. E. Vaughn, aged 34 years, suffered agony by contact with a feed wire carrying 6,000 volts of electricity, then fell to the ground bruised, bleeding and burned. He breathed his last just as the patrol wagon arrived at the emergency hospital.

Vaughn, who was known among railroad men and poolroom devotees as "Checkers," was engaged in painting poles for the Utah Light and Railway company on Eighth South and State street at 9:20 this morning. He had climbed one of the poles with his paint brush and bucket in hand, and with a song on his lip started to work. Vaughn threw one leg over a cross beam and in some manner came in contact with a feed wire. The man uttered an agonizing shriek, his body pitched over the cross beam and suspended there for a moment while flashes of blue fire shot from various parts of his body and then he fell with a crash to the ground 20 feet below. He was quickly picked up by men working in a trench near by and was placed in the patrol wagon which had been summoned. He was hurried to the emergency hospital at police headquarters but died just before reaching there. The body was sent to O'Donnell's mortuary.

Vaughn had been at work painting the poles and for several months was engaged in the work. He roomed at the Lincoln House and only a day or two ago remarked to some of his friends that his work was dangerous, and that he had to be careful to avoid feed wires and some of the poles.

He had been at work a little more than an hour this morning when the tragedy happened. Just how he came in contact with the wire was not known. Men working for the Utah Gas & Coke company digging a trench, saw him climb the pole and heard him humming a tune, and then he disappeared. His body was seen to lurch forward while he flashed and then came the fall.

BADLY BURNED

PATROLMAN'S STORY

Patrolman Thomas Gillespie said: "When we got there the man was lying on his back on a pole of blood. His clothing was on fire and his hand and leg were horribly burned. We got a bucket of water and threw it over him. As quickly as possible we hurried to the emergency hospital and hurried for the emergency hospital. The man was still breathing when we crossed Second South, but when we pulled up to the emergency hospital, we found that he was dead, and then we took the body to O'Donnell's. Dr. Steele was notified and was at the station when the body was taken there, but of course his services were of no avail as the poor fellow was dead."

Vaughn came here about two years ago and was a member of the Salt Lake branch of the Lincoln House. It is said that he was at one time in the navy and came here from San Francisco. He frequented the poolrooms and was well known among the railroad fraternity. He knew the pedigree of nearly every horse on the track, and talked constantly of the "game" horses. About a year ago he secured a contract from the Utah Light & Railway company to paint the new iron poles being erected along the sides of the street, and employed a force of men to help him with the work.

Efforts are being made by the authorities to learn if he had any relatives. No arrangement for the funeral have been made as yet.

NOW HUTTON VANISHED

Second Employee of Undertaker Had To Disappear With Cash.

T. L. Hutton, former manager of a Brigham branch of the Elber W. Hall undertaking establishment, has joined Edward J. Marnell, the absconding employee of Mr. Hall's Salt Lake office. The wanted but missing corpse, Hutton was arrested in the Lincoln House on April 19, when he took $1,000 along with him, the investigation of the firm's books and accounts threw strong reflection against Hutton. Hutton, a year ago, he secured a contract from the Utah Light & Railway company to paint the new iron poles being erected along the sides of the street, and employed a force of men to help him with the work.

Efforts are being made by the authorities to learn if he had any relatives. No arrangement for the funeral have been made as yet.
